

WE HAVE THE FIGURES

But complying with request of Prof. J. W. SANBORN, director of the Utah Experimental Station (founded by an act of Congress), we await his bulletin on Government Trial of Mowers, which took place July 20th, 21st, 1891, at Logan, on meadows owned by FRANK BENSON and BENJAMIN WILLIAMS. In the trial were 15 Mowers and with each Mower were made 10 tests, as follows:

In Lucern, 3; in Wild Hay, 3; in Timothy and Clover, 4; in all, 150 Tests.

All machines were operated under the supervision of Prof. Sanborn, each ridden by the same man, pulled by the same team, which was driven all through the trial by the same driver. The professor and other gentlemen say that this trial made with a Baldwin Self-Registering Dynamometer, was the most thorough, exhaustive and careful draft test ever made in America. The closing of trial gave following results,

IN FAVOR OF W. A. WOOD MOWER, WHICH BEAT ALL ITS COMPETITORS.

In Timothy and Clover: 270 lbs., 268 lbs., 231 lbs., 254 lbs., 234 lbs., 225 lbs., 239 lbs., 239 lbs., 227 lbs., 248 lbs., 241 lbs., 250 lbs.

Respectfully, Leading Implement Dealers, CO-OPERATIVE WAGON & MACHINE COMPANY.

The above will show to our friends and patrons the absurd position in which our competitors placed themselves in their advertisement found in the Salt Lake Herald, July 12th, and if further evidence were necessary we refer to the first column on the first page of the Logan Journal, dated July 22nd, 1891, in which will be found the following: "Prof. Sanborn kept the matter in his own hands and all the parties active in the contest—active in handling the machines they represented on the ground—agreed that the trial had been fair and impartial and signed an affidavit to that effect. The test is of the utmost importance, as it has taken place under government direction and will be noted all over this country and elsewhere and will be taken as authoritative." Also to letters that have been in our possession commencing June 30th, and affidavits from all the implement dealers participating in the Government Trial above referred to.

We do not deal in personalities. There is no G. A. S. in this.

A CLIMB UP TO THE SNOWS

Musicians Find a Paradise this Side of Monterey and Farries There—A Sail on the Lake.

After a day's ride in the cars over the sandy, hot desert of Nevada, one is in a suitable condition to enjoy the cool mountain breezes laden with odor of pines and wild flowers. The waters of the rushing Truckee river look so refreshing that one dislikes to part with them. So much was this the case with me that on arriving at Truckee station I desired my Pullman sleeper and quickly let the train pull out without me. After spending the night at a comfortable hotel I took stage the next morning to find the source of the stream, the much praised beautiful Lake Tahoe. After a delightful ride of fourteen miles along the river bank between rugged crags whose base was covered with sheltering pines, right up to the river's brink we arrived at the lake at the point where the river takes its departure from its beautiful parent, only to be lost in the deserts of the "Carson Sink" about 150 miles away. Expecting so much of the view before me I scarcely felt either delight or disappointment at first at the sight of the glassy mirror that lay at my feet, with its surroundings of pine and snow-covered mountains. Expected the surroundings to be more rugged, steep and picturesque. However, I had to admit that the view before me was a commonplace one. It took the wonderful effects of a gorgeous sunset to thoroughly capture me. Our entire surroundings were transformed into a fairy land that was indescribably beautiful. A slight breeze seemed to veil the surrounding mountains, while the surface of the lake changed from the deep sky blue to all the colors of the rainbow, only softened. Here, the colors of the sunset were reflected from the sky on to the bosom of the placid lake. Yonder a slight breeze ruffled it just enough to efface the mirror-like reflection, the water retaining its deep green hue, while here and there, surrounding and above it all like a frame, glistened patches of glistening snow on the mountains. Yes, Lake Tahoe is indeed beautiful!

FIVE MILES THROUGH PINES TO THE SNOW. As I was in no hurry to leave this cool, romantic place, instead of taking a boat to ride around the lake I started out to ramble through the pines that grew up the mountains, bent on finding some "snow flowers," a strange scarlet like flower nearly a foot in length, that emerges almost out of the snow like a mushroom. Of course in addition to the flowers I anticipated a fine view of the lake from the mountains tops. I walked on and on through forest after forest. It was very lonely, and I admit the thought of meeting a bear was not very pleasant; finally, when a deer timidly sprang out and then left me in full possession of my lonely road, the sight startled me I fear more than it did the deer. More than once I sang songs after songs to arouse myself and perchance frighten away the bear. I was on the track—at least to the thought of the bear. Finally, after climbing about four miles I heard the music of numerous cowbells, and there was a wide flowery meadow stretched before me with a number of cows grazing upon it. Fortunately, I thought I should have some good fresh milk, even though I get no snow flowers. Farther on, beneath the steep cliffs where gleamed the snow, was the humble cabin of the dairy maid. He kindly directed me to the snow, which I reached and some distance away found my flowers and also had a fine view of the valley, or lake rather, as it leaves no level shore. It looked like a vast mirror fringed around with trees. On my return I also got the coveted milk—but it was sour. I was weary and foot-sore before I reached my hotel; still I would not have missed my walk.

A RIDE AROUND THE LAKE. The third day, being rather sore from wading, I took a trip around the lake in the snug, comfortable little steamer "Tod Goodwin" christened by the way, after a son of our townsman Mr. Goodwin, the son being named after his genial old captain Mr. Todman. It one falls to fall in love with Tahoe at first, sight he cannot but do so the moment he begins to ride on its beautiful waters, the wonderful blue and green around, and beneath you, the perfect picture of the distant mountains reflected in the waves created by the boat not ten feet away, is wonderful and the scenery surrounding it becomes more and more enchanting as one hears old "Tod" Goodwin, the "Emerald Bay" is an enchanting look with its brilliant colored waters, its island, trees and waterfalls, with great fountains and melting snows in the background. It is the finest spot on the entire lake, though "Tahoe" and "Glenwood" are very nicely situated. When on the lake one realizes that what a basin it is all in, and as he looks on the deep blue waters the fact that he is perhaps 1,800 feet above the bottom still, would not comfort him if a severe storm came up. He would have a noble tomb if he sank, as bodies never come to the surface in this lake. Once down they stay; not even a scrap of clothing has ever been seen from a sunken boat. This is difficult to account for; some believe there are undercurrents in the depths of the lake that carry everything, no one knows where, or perhaps the depths of the water is too cold for decomposition to take place, though near shore it is not too cold to bathe in with comfort. To-day there is breeze enough to keep the waters all white, with here and there the least bit of a white cap; the boat rocks a little—what would it be if a raging wind came up? Well, I do not care to find out. All the while I was interested in the mountain tops. The trout are fine and it must be great sport to catch them. I see people bring five-pounders, but have as yet resisted all temptations to try my luck. Oh, dear, when I get a Herald, Musicians.

A NOTED DEMOCRAT.

Much Admired as a Speaker and a Writer.

Colonel Alexander H. McClure, a Very Powerful Pen—A Staunch Cleveland Man.

[FOR THE SUNDAY HERALD—Copyrighted.] Alexander H. McClure, the well known Philadelphia journalist, whose controversy with Colonel John G. Nicolay regarding the late Hannibal Hamlin has attracted attention, was born sixty-one years ago, in Franklin county, Pa. He first worked in a tannery, but abandoned this for journalism, and during the war became editor of the Chambersburg Repository, a weekly paper. He took great interest in politics, and was a delegate to the Lincoln convention in 1860. He was a delegate at large in 1864. He joined the Democratic party in 1872, in the Greeley-Grant campaign, and was a staunch supporter of Hancock in 1880 and of Cleveland in 1884. He has always exhibited great skill in managing politicians. He learned political methods from Simon Cameron, which he afterward used against him when in opposition. Colonel McClure established, in connection with two Philadelphia printers—the McLaughlin Brothers—the Philadelphia Times in 1877. He is the principal proprietor and its editor in chief. For some time he was an agent for the Pennsylvania railroad in Virginia. Colonel McClure is a powerful pen, and considers himself a better journalist than editor. He is a fine specimen of humanity, being six feet three inches in height, with a head and face suggesting Daniel Webster. He is much admired as a speaker and as a writer.

CONRAD. An excursion up the St. Clair river and Lake Huron, would be refreshing after a day's session of the G. A. R. in Detroit. Call on the Union Pacific agent for rates.

SHARP FEVER. At this season of the year the most vigorous and healthy people often have a feeling of weariness, tired and worn out, with out ambition to do anything, and many break out in pimples and boils. What you require is a mild tonic medicine that will act gently on the liver and blood, and for this nothing equals Dr. Cass's Improved Liver Pills. They give an activity to the liver, purify the blood, and by their mild tonic action, give new vitality and strength to the entire system. Sold at 25 cents a box by druggists.
